Investors, continue to follow CenGroup Petroleum Corporation (PINKSHEETS: CPCO), a company developed to recover surface oil in the Caspian Sea Region and to reclaim the oil to productive use while environmentally restoring the land, sea, and shore. After the closing bell Tuesday the company announced the selection of three inaugural sites to begin its oil recovery program.

CenGroup said that two oil-contaminated lakes around the Azerbaijan capital of Baku and the coastal area of the Caspian Sea have been identified as the start-up sites for the company's Recovery and Reclamation (R2) operations. Because of various pollutants, including oil from spills, many scientists believe the Apsheron Peninsula and the Caspian Sea to be one of the worst ecological contaminated areas in the world.

Neville Trevor, CenGroup Petroleum CEO, commented on location in Baku, "This is an exciting time for both CenGroup and the region. We launch our R2 operations on the heels of a major pipeline opening. This $4 billion project (sponsored by a Western consortium) connects oil flow from Baku to Turkey's Ceyhan. Experts expect this project to double the country's revenues within 3 years."
